The Partnership with DumpClub 64

The motto of DumpClub 64 is "Preserve and Share". A motto that fits perfectly with the goal set by the newly formed RetroMagazine World Cultural Association.

The idea of starting a close collaboration between these two realities came from a chat with Roberto Lanciotti, the man behind the DumpClub 64 Project.

Our association, with Press Play Again, holds a tool that is breathing new life into the newsstand cassette (very famous in Italy!). For its part, DumpClub 64 has the ability and capacity to retrieve and share the software contained in those tapes that would otherwise be doomed to oblivion.

Given the above and the common purpose, it was almost a foregone conclusion that this partnership would be born.

The magazine you virtually 'hold' in your hands is the first product of this collaboration. The idea is to reintroduce the collections recovered from DumpClub 64 and revive them on a digital medium with a new graphic look and at the same time re-proposing their original artwork to make sure that even these small works of art are not lost in the maze of the net.

In particular, this issue is dedicated to the UniSoft series and deals with unpublished material!

We hope these collections may entice our readers and retro-enthusiasts to try these programs and (re)discover a world that perhaps, after forty years, is almost forgotten...

If you have created games and/or have material you would like to see published on this insert, please do not hesitate any further and contact us at our email address:

6485/4 - TANKS

With this game you will test your skill as a gunner. Your mission consists in destroying the enemy's tanks while having only one piece of artillery at your disposal. The enemy's tank company becomes more and more numerous and belligerent as you progress through the game or change difficulty level. Use the joystick or keyboard. The "H" key will allow you to get to slow down the action.

6485/6 - FAR WEST

You are the bartender of a saloon in the legendary Far-West.

You will have to fill and toss mugs of beer to the cowboys, taking care not to drop the empty ones. Be careful not to "forget" to serve someone, in which case the bartender will be brutally thrown against the wall.

Use the joystick or keyboard.
